

Marion: The Story of an Artists Model

The daughter of an English merchant father and Chinese mother, Winnifred Eaton (1875-1954) was a wildly popular fiction writer in her time. Born in Montreal, Eaton lived in Jamaica and several places in the United States before settling in Alberta. Her books, many of them published under the Japanese pseudonym Onoto Watanna, encompass the experiences of marginalized women in Canada, Jamaica, the United States, and a romantic, imagined Japan. Marion: The Story of an Artists Model is Eatons only book that explicitly deals with being foreign in Canada. The novel follows the life of half-foreign Marion Ascough - a character based on Eatons own sister - while never identifying her foreignness. Escaping the unrelenting racial discrimination her family endures in Quebec, Marion follows her dream of being an artist by moving to New York, where she becomes Canadian instead of ethnic - a more palatable foreignness. Having successfully stripped herself of her ethnicity, Marion continues to experience discrimination and objectification as a woman, failing as an artist and becoming an artists model. Karen Skinazis introduction to Eatons fascinating narrative draws attention to the fact that although the novel uses many of the conventions of the race secret story, this time the secret is never revealed. This new edition of Marion: The Story of An Artists Model brings back into print a compelling and sophisticated treasure of Asian Canadian/American fiction that offers a rare perspective on ethnicity, gender, and identity.
