

Paradise Lost: Books I and II (Classic Reprint)

VII LIFE OF MILTON JOHN MILTON, the son of John and Sarah Milton, was born on the 9th of December, 1608, at his father's house in Bread Street, Cheapside. His father was of gentle birth, and the family had been long settled in Oxfordshire; but the grandfather of the poet was a strong Papist, and disinherited his son, who had embraced the Protestant faith. The son settled in London, where he pursued the profession of scrivener, and amassed a considerable fortune. He was a man of culture, and an excellent musician; and it was from him that the poet inherited his love of letters and his love of music. No pains and no expense were spared in his education. First he was taught at home by Thomas Young, a Puritan divine, afterwards Master of Jesus College, Cambridge; then he was sent to St. Paul's School; and at the age of sixteen he went to Christ's College, Cambridge, where he remained till he took his M.A. degree, in 1632. There is a foolish story current of his having been whipped at college; but we may safely accept his own words as evidence of the reputation which he bore as an undergraduate I found more than ordinary favour and respect above any of my equals at the hands of those courteous and learned men the fellows of the college wherein I spent some years.
