

Famine, Fenians and Freedom, 1840-1882 (Rebellions Trilogy)

Famine, Fenians and Freedom, 1840-1882 is the second volume of a trilogy on resistance and rebellion in the British Empire. It examines the Irish dimension in Britains Empire, evident in Three Rebellions: Canada 1837-1838, South Wales 1839 and Victoria, Australia 1854, through attempts especially by the Young Ireland and Fenian movements to achieve Irelands independence through rebellion between 1840 and 1882 and by the populist and parliamentary constitutionalist Repeal Association and campaign for Home Rule to achieved devolved government. Fenians rejected the constitutional path and sought change through armed struggle and this spread across the Atlantic to the United States and Canada, to South Africa and Australasia where it was absorbed by existing Irish communities and reinforced by recent immigrants. In these disparate communities, the notion of an independent Ireland was sustained though what it meant in practice within those communities differed.
