

The Works of Francis Bacon (Classic Reprint)

Letters are not all that the author wrote; but selected from a larger number, as containing somewhat remarkable either with regard to his life or writings. According to this distinction, they are here divided into two parts; the first whereof contains some account of his active, as the other does of his contemplative life. They are severally ranged as near the order of time, as could well be discovered by their dates or otherwise. The style of those originally written in English is seldom altered, or only where a word or expression was obsolete, that their native simplicity might be the better preserved. And where any illustration is wanting, the notes occasionally supply it chiefly from M (Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and do not occur in the book.)
